SIRABLE TYPE, SAYS TAFT. Business Man, for That Sort Is Not the Kind as Institution Should Have —A Distinguished Gathering of Public

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Nov. 12.-The States, Senator Elihu Root and entatives of about a hundred is and universities in all parts of day of William Arnold Shanklin ident of Wesleyan University. anklin comes to Wesleyan from the syste, Ia., to fill the vacancy caused the retirement on account of ill health the venerable Bradford P. Raymond.

the installation exercises, and the President at a dinner in the evening. nt Taft condemned the tendency college management, and it some-has been suggested to me that what ed is a business man, a man who ill put an institution on a business man and only that has his s him from a college presidency. The ge president is first of all, a teacher, would fulfil his duty he under at in Dr. Shanklin they had a teacher. he larger universities to strive for an set sort represented an increase in responsibilities of the university seessitated a hunt for money to meet

Tean't imagine anything more invit "said he, referring to the advantages a smaller college," than the taking of comparatively small body of young and developing them under your luence to bring out traits of high aracter, for which all education and lining are the preparation and basis." The President described college spirit something that stands through life a restraint against evil and as an in ration to do good.

"There is nothing," said he, "that compts such an endeavor and that keeps in in as honorable a course as the desire stand well with the men who developed an youth to manhood in the same procession, with a wealth of brilliant colors.

H. C. M., Ingraham, chairman of the Wealeyan board of trustees, presided.
Addresses were delivered by Prof. Rice on behalf of the faculty, by Stephen H. Olin on behalf of the alumni, by ex-President Bradford P. Raymond, by President Abram W. Harris of Northwestern University; President M. W. Stryker of Hamilton College; President Hadley of Yale and by Dr. Shanklin.

The new head of Wesleyan had a word or two to say against the elective sustem. "We have refused," said he, "to fall in with that mischievous sorapheap educational fad which is now coming to be recognized as such even by many who until recently accepted it. Nor does 5this mean that I am not a believer in the fundamental idea of an elective system, namely that of individuality and the cultivation of aptitudes; but that idea has found poor expression through the unscientific system or rather lack of system now so largely in use.

"Happily we are in the midst of a salutary reaction against the excesses of the elective system. The pendulum is swinging back."

Of athletics the new president said:

the elective system The pendulum is swinging back."

Of athletics the new president said:

Misleading as the predominance of athletics in a college may be, bad as the management of college athletics has often been, the fact remains that in athletics lies a saving power. Athletics supply that Dr. Eliot calls a new and effective motive for resisting all sins which weaken of cripple the body. We cannot afford to lose either this high motive or the lessons of self-control, concentrated attention, prompt and vigorous action, and instant and implicit obedience.

President Shanklin also said: "I am not particularly insistent that the college President Shanklin also said: "I am not particularly insistent that the college he small or large. It should be the qualitative and not the quantitative that should distinguish her. There must, however, the the personal touch and impact. The value of any teacher diminishes as the square of his distance increases. Wesleyan can never be a college of great numbers. Therein lies for her a unique opportunity if only we are bold enough and brave enough to seize it.

"Our compact tradition and enthusiastic solidarity of interest, where every man of faculty and undergraduates knows every other man, joined with the positively assured high intellectual ideal of Wesleyan, has given the college its distinguished place among the institutions of the land. And we openly announce that Wesleyan does not desire at any time and with the content with area!"

Mark Twain Will Speak at a Parewell

Dinner at the Plaza Col. H. O. S. Heistand, Adjutant General of the Department of the East. will be the guest at a dinner on Thursday at that unless he is a teacher be to the state of the who will depart for the Philippines soon, be toastmaster, and among the members of the reception committee will be Cor-nelius Vanderbilt, R. Fulton Cutting, Nicholas Murray Butler, William H. Fletcher, Isaac Guggenheim and A. Ernst

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.-Mrs. Frederick

FOR ARMY GENERAL STAFF.

There are too many men in the world, he said, who are mere machines working in proves, who after they have accumulated fortunes don't know what to do except to go on accumulating more.

The pendulum, said he, "has swing too far toward teaching the young men one thing for themselves instead of educating them to do great things for the world by being men."

The installation exercises were held in the old Middlesex Theatre. The President, with Vice-President Sherman, arrived in the college town at 8:30 A. M. Mr. Sherman had been the President's guest on the private car Mayflower on the run from Washington. Dr. Shanklin, Dr. Raymond, the retiring president, and several of the Wesleyan professors met the visitors at the station. The installation exercises were preceded by a parade, which was the townsfolks greeting to the President and Vice-President. As Mr. Taft and Mr. Sherman entered the theatre at the end of the long academic procession the students cheered. They also tapped a college yell for Senator Root. The President and the Vice-President wore the regulation gown and mortarboard and the purple hoods of dectors of laws. It was an imposing procession, with a wealth of brilliant colors.

H. C. M., Ingraham, chairman of the WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Majer-Gen. John F. Weston, commanding the Department of California, will be placed on the retired list to-morrow, when he will be 64 years of age. The vacancy in the grade of Major-General will be filled by the promotion of Brig.-Gen. William H. Carter, now in command of the Department of Luzon of the Philippines division. Col. John G. D. Knight of the Engineer Corps will be appointed a Brigadier-General. He will retire on January 24, 1810.

Capt. Murdock to Be a Rear Admiral. WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Capt. Joseph B. Murdock, U. S. N., commandent of B. Murdock, U. S. N., commandent of the New York Navy Yard, will be pro-moted to the grade of Rear Admiral on November 20 next on the retirement of Rear Admiral Edward D. Taussig, commandant of the Norfolk Navy Yard. Capt. Murdock was in Washington to-day to appear before the naval examining board for examination for promotion.

Movements of Naval Vessels. Washington, Nov. 12—The gun boat Hist has arrived at Key West.

The cruiser Dixle and the submarine Cuttlefish have sailed from New York for Charleston, the collier Saturn from Panama for San Francisco and the collier Marcellus from Boston for Hampton

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.-The following named persons had been appointed in-spectors of customs at the Port of New York to-day at $5 a day: Erwin Haskin, John H. Grace, S. F. Hallock, W. T. St. George and P. W. Girr.

Army and Navy Orders. WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—These army orders were issued to-day:
Major Charles C. Ballou, Seventh Infantry, from Baltimore as constructing quartermaster to Philippines division.
Capt. Dorsey Cullen, Second Cavairy, to Presidio of San Francisco general hospital for treatment.

FRONTS THE PALADINO.

her own impressiveness. She looks with wonderment at the men and women who pay court to her. Yesterday in Mr. Carrington's studio she met a lot of re-

when once the apartment uptown is ready for the Paladino.

when once the apartment uptown is ready for the Paladino.

If somebody had taken hold of Eusapia Paladino when she was a girl he could have made of her something of an actress. That's the way she impressed the reporters. She has more than the usual Latin expressiveness in her face and her gestures. When she is surprised you can see plenty of the whites of her eyes. She has a knack of looking honest with a sort of peasant honesty which knocks suspicion out of your head.

Of course the reporters asked for a sign, after the manner of the doubting, but she gave none. She merely answered with a vast flow of Italian syllables what they asked her. Signor Sarno had a very hard time getting in his interpretations. Somebody asked her how she happened to slip into the medium business. She said that she got into it through John King. At any rate she thought it was John King. John is the ghost of an Elizabethan buccaneer, so conjectures Mr. Carrington, and he appears to the Paladino whenever she gets into one of her deep trances. It is not to be supposed that John comes when she is in a light trance, because he doesn't. If he did there's no doubt but that the Signora could tell more about him than she does, for she's fully aware of what is goling on when she is not completely gone in a deep trance.

asked him if ever there had lived there a man by the name that John mentioned. There had, which showed Eusapia that John could produce his Eski res.

One evening she was called in to make a fourth at a game of table tipping. Just as soon as Eusapia put her fingers on the table the thing began to hop. The others took off their fingers one by one, and Eusapia was left alone as the mover of the table. That helped to show her something strange in her makeup.

The Paladino said that when she first began she saw that there was a chance to turn a few honest lire, so she would do tricks for a piece or two of silver. After she had been at that for some time. Cesare Lombroso heard of her and in 1891 became assured that she was no common conjurer. When she spoke of Lombroso yesterday her voice stuffed up and she declared that she wouldn't try to talk to his spirit self for anything in the world. Somebody asked her how she feels when she comes out of a trance. Outte worn out, she said. Her arms feel as if they were loaded with lead. While the trance is coming on, she declared, she feels increasingly sensitive, very touchy, as if she could easily be an ry with some one.

Did you ever mee: "ybody who they were loaded with lead. While the trance is coming on, she declared, she feels increasingly sensitive, very touchy, as if she could easily be an ry with some one.

"Did you ever meet "ybody who looked like John?" asked amebody.

The Paladino shrugged. "I don't walk with John," she said. "He's no friend of mine."

She declared that John isn't always consistent in his answers. Sometimes he answers both yes and no to a question.

She said that she talked with spirits through a code of raps. Two raps meant "yes," three "no," four "talk," five "less light," six don't mean anything at all, and seven show that it's time to wind up the sitting.

The sighora didn't seem to understand what somebody meant when he inquired how she came to work out the code. She let it be inferred that it was really a very simple matter which she and the spooks had worked out between them.

A reporter asked her what John thought about the future life. So far as she knew John didn't know anything about it, much less did she. Eusapia Paladino doesn't seem to grasp any question of an intellectual character. All the phenomena which she produces, said Hereward M. Carrington, are of a physicial nature and she doesn't understand anything else.

When the questions were done with Eusapia drank her tea and had many words with Signor Canudo, editor of an Italian newspaper. Once in a while she would stop her talking and start to sing with all the pleasure in the world. It was a song she had picked up in that Harlem flat of Signora Paladino has been, twice.

Mr. Carrington and she was on tiptoe to find out what it was. One of the reporters thought back a year and remembered. "Oh, it's delightful to be married"—which Signora Paladino has been, twice.

Mr. Carrington Eaid yesterday afternoon that the Signora gets sit? for every one of her seances. He has a contract with her whereby she is to work under his orders as long as he has any use for her, which will carry her well beyond the experiments, said yesterday afternoon that people ought to keep in o

TALKS IN HARTFORD.

HARTFORD, Nov. 12.—Mystery surrounds the identity of a woman found dead and a man in a critical condition from morphine poiscning in a local hotel this afternoon. On Sunday the couple came to Long's Hotel and registered as R. S. Brown and wife, Canton, Ohio. In the days intervening they were mostly in their rooms. Each was well dressed and

From $2,500 to $1,500. for $2,500 was reduced to $1,500 yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Leitzau shot Samuel Moriey, manager of the Cranbrook farm, last evening. Morley died this morning. Miss Leitzau is in jail charged with murder.

"Two weeks ago I learned that Morley was going to marry Fanny Patchett, said Bertha Leitzau to-day, "and I went to Detroit and bought a revolver. Last night I was to go to Detroit to a church social. I took the revolver along because the road to the car was dark.

"I got off at the Lone Pine Tree road. In the dark I met him hurrying to see his new sweetheart. As we walked I argued with him, but he laughed and aneered and said he never intended to marry me. I pulled the revolver out of my purse and fired at him. He was only a few feet away when I pulled the trigger twice. I ran down the road without waiting to see whether he was alive or not."

ENJOINED FROM REHEARSING.

The first Supreme Court injunction preventing an actress from rehearsing was granted yesterday by Justice McCal was granted yesterday by Justice McCal on the motion of counsel for the Shuberts for an order restraining Nance O'Neil from appearing under the management of David Belasce or any one else than the Shuberts during 1908 and 1910.

When the case was called yesterday David Gerber, counsel for Miss O'Neil, said that owing to the importance of the case he wanted an adjournment until next Thursday. William Klein for the Shuberts was willing to consent to the adjournment if he got an injunction preventing Miss O'Neil from rehearsing a Belasco play in the meantime. The court immediately granted it.

J. S. Kennedy Memerial Meeting.
Friends of John Stewart Rennedy have arranged to hold a meeting in his memory in the assembly hall of the United Charities Building on Monday, November 22, at 8:15 P. M. Among those who are expected to take part are President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia, Dr. Georgs Washburn, former president of Robert College; Dr. A. F. Schauffer, president of the New York City Mission and Tract Society, John L. Cadwalader, vice-president of the New York Public Library; Frederick Sturges, vice-president of the Presbyterian Hospital, and Dr. Edward T. Devine, general secretary of the Charity Organization Society.

Sailing to-day by the Anchor liner Caledonia, for Glasgow: Col. and Mrs. G. A. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bowman Lindsay, William R. Mont-gomery, Mr. and Mrs. George Palmer, Dr. Alfred A. Young, H. Percy Mills and Donald Cameron.

Alfred A. Young, H. Percy Mills and Donald Cameron.

Passengers by the White Star liner Arabic, for Queenstown and Liverpool: Capt. Charies E. Etti. Alexander Genee, David Low, William H. Wright, Mrs. D. S. Perkins, Mgr. Mealpine and Thomas B. Egleston.

By the American liner New York, for Plymouth, Cherbourg and Southampton: 13. P. Christy, C. V. U. Jay, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Stevens, Rolland Besumont and Mrs. Louis H. Ayme.

Mrs. John Jacob Aster Back in Town.
Mrs. John Jacob Aster arrived in New York yesterday merning from French Lick Springs. She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Thompson and also by her amail daughter and her maid. All went to the home of Mrs. Guinness, at 8 Washington Square North.

PRESIDENT ON SHAKY PERCE

entrusted his. 200 pounds to a small wainut table here this evening and delivered a speach therefrom. He had a good many experiences in the speach making line on his 13,000 mile trip just finished, but this was the first time he ever orated from a table top. The President mounted the table at the dedication of the new State armory and arose before a cheering growd of from 12,000 to 15,000 persons. The audience was one of the biggest Mr. Taft had ever faced indoors.

The platform at the end of the great building was only about two feet high and after Mr. Taft had mounted it not more than a quarter of the audience could see him. The recket began right away. A Hartford preacher (nobody could hear his name) delivered an invocation two type-written pages long. Except for the motion of his mouth few knew when he began or ended.

paper box to somebody else, whose name be held to-day was drowned by the roar of the crowd, and the latter somebody made a speech to it and handed it to another unidentified frigate Coust the ward.

and the result was that Mr. Taft finally succeeded in making himself heard fairly well. It was noticeable, however, that his movements.

The President's speech was brief.

He congratulated the State and the city upon the erection of the new structure.

"It is a structure better adapted for any the structure better adapted for any the structure.

sister; Rear Admiral Cowles and Gen.
Wood. The President shook hands with the Admiral and Mrs. Cowles.

The President was the guest of the Hartford Club at dinner and later attended a military ball at the arsenal. He left Hartford at 10 o'clock for Washington: He will reach the White House early tomorrow morning. His next trip will be to Norfolk, Va., next week.

ROBBED WHILE WANDERING.

Japanese Says Negre Womas Grabbed
Him and Stele $5,000.

Iwaskieka Tanaska, a Japanese who

Him and Stele $5.000.

Iwaskiska Tanaska, a Japanese who is said to be here on a mission from his Government, lost his way a few nights ago, and according to his story to the police wandered about in the neighbor, hood of Ninth avenue and Thirty-seventh street while trying to reach the Hotel Netherland, where he is stopping. During his wanderings, he says, he was grabbed from behind by a negro woman who stole his wallet containing $500 in cash and a letter of credit for £1,000 drawn on the Hong Kong and Shanghia Bank.

He eventually found his hotel and reported the matter to the police.

Early yesterday morning Mr. Tanaska walked through West Thirty-seventh street with Detectives Thomas and Currand pointed out a negro woman as the one that robbed him.

He was not able to appear against the woman in the West Side police court later in the day, but she was held in $2,000 ball on a short affidavit charging robbery for examination to-day, when Mr. Tanaska is expected to be present.

The woman said she was Lulu Cumings of 2252 Eighth avenue. The police say that she has been twice convicted of working the badger game.

6,132 STUDENTS AT COLUMBIA. Enrelment Beats Last Year's by 189 -1,682 in the College.

Columbia University has a student enrolment of 6.122 this year. This is an increase of 750 over last year and is the greatest ever recorded at Columbia. Every department shows an increase, some of more than 35 per cent.

In Teachers College 974 students are registered. There are 991 doing graduate work. Columbia College proper has a registration of 582. The other graduate body, the school of applied science, has an enrolment of 680. The total includes 1.452 summer students who are not new registered in the university, but it does not include the 4,000 students registered in extension and special courses given by Columbia instructors but not included in the regular curriculum.

Think Right piano

Don't pay for anything but the plane. We would blush to piene. We would blush to charge you for the Estoy good name. A fair price for best materials and skill is all we want. Come and see an Batey 7 West 29th Street, New York

PRINCETON, Nov. 12.—Mrs. Isabella Guthrie McCosb, widow of President James McCosb of Princeton University, died this morning at her home here in her sixtety-third year. She was in good health until this week and had been out driving a relief to the same had been out

He was handicapped, however, by a woman fainting in the crowd just as he had get his hat focused under an electric light to begin his address.

Then this young man handed the tissue—paper box to somebody else, whose name was drowned by the roar of the crowd, and the latter somebody made a speech to it and handed it to another unidentified person, who looked equally eloquent and pessed it finally to Gov. Weeks. The Governor bowed low and strained his lungs. Once or twice the word "key" arose above the din.

By this time, however, the President had begun an inspection of the table in front of him. He reached down and grasped one of the legs in his hands. It was solid. Then he landed his big hand on top and tried to shake it. The top was only about two feet wide and four feet long, but the whole thing seemed pretty strongly put together. At any rate the President was satisfied with this casual inspection and nodded to one of his secret service guards to have a chair ready for him.

One or two of the local committeesmen started to protest when Mr. Taft got to his feet, but he waved them aside. A big armchair was shoved over to the table, and from this the President mounted without any trouble; in fact it was a nimble performance. The crowd its delight for several minutes and the result was that Mr. Taft finally succeeded in making himself heard fairly well. It was noticeable, however, that his wife, one daughter and a, son, Raiph shaw, as a selection in Passaio county.

Capt. Hiram L. Meeker, for many years was grand the Prosculur in Passaio county.

PAIR OF PHILANDHROPISTS WISH TO BUY IT A DINNER. wemblyman Frawley" May Drop in on You With a Little Book and a Request for Money to Give Sensters and As-semblymen One Signato Meal a Year.

spokesman, a tall man appe forward as he presented the book and re-marked: "I am Assemblyman Frawley. This [pointing to his comrade] is Mr.

Mr. Ferguson is apparently younger in years if not in missionary experience than "Assemblyman Frawley" and is

mr. Kirby that he had been sent to him by Tim Donohue, the customs inspector, "Nudging Tim," as he has sometimes been familiariy called by those who have been up against him as it were on many a pier on the arrival of a transatlantic steamship. "Of course, you know Inspector Donohue," said Mr. Frawley. "He sent us to you and said you would of course be glad to contribute to so worthy an object."

And he opened the book which showed the many sketches and later the rubber stamped contributions of well known Fifth avenue business houses in sums varying from $25 to $50.

The book interested Mr. Kirby immensely, the rubber stamps even more so. There was a certain similarity about the stamps which caused him wonder, even when he saw there such names as those of Behjamin Altman and Plack, Starr & Frost. He was so much interested in perusing the lists that "Assemblyman Frawley" reminded him again that of course he knew Inspector Donohue. Mr. Kirby said that he had not the pleasure of the inspector's acquaintance, but that he had not Loeb.

"THE CHOICE," A Story of Love and Politics, is CLEVERNESS The action of the story is of intense interest and the climar in thrilling. Other features are: 'McDongall"-Anususual Christmas | "On Being an Old Maid"-"The Vampire Sunrise" story of occultism.

B. Altman & Co.

The Cleverest Dramatic and Book Reviews of the Month.

JUST OUT

COLORED DRESS FABRICS

IN LENGTHS OF BROADCLOTH, DIAGONAL CHEVIOTS, SATIN FINISH MATERIALS; CREPES, BENGALINES, BEDPORD CORDS AND OTHER SILK AND WOOL FASRICS. HERETOPORE $1.25 TO 4.00 PER YARD, WILL BE PLACED ON SALE THIS DAY (SATURDAY), NOV. 13th.

> AT 750, $1.00 TO $2.00 PER YARD SOLD IN DRESS LENGTHS ONLY.